Last Race Day of the Summer/JBY Series, Sunday, August 27

The weather forecast called for rain in the morning and thunderstorms in the afternoon. It was therefore not surprising that only two boats showed up for this last race of the mid-distance series. The thunderstorms did not materialize, and the light drizzle that we experienced at the start soon stopped. Eventually, we even had sunshine. The sun came out shortly after we finished the race and fired up one of the grills for the cook-out. Even though we had only a two-boat race, the "Keg&Barbie" party was attended by 12 people. Here are the race results:

FANTASY's Voyage to Kingston, Ontario

Attached is a report of our recent trip to Kingston which contains useful information for those who are toying with the idea of sailing to Canada. Especially noteworthy are the strict regulations of the Canadian and American immigration authorities
