Memory Map Summer Virtual Mark Series (MMSVMS) Race 6

Well, we had a 1:30 start with shifty NE winds 0 - 6 kts and no one was over early because most were puttering over to the line. The race was set as Blue Barge, West shore, home but the course was changed to Blue Barge, home. Well, the wind never filled out as predicted so we were left with the usual slow sail towards Blue Barge. It was windy enough that you couldn't hear the sounds of beers being cracked open, so there's that. Trevelyan was the first at the mark, over the finish and to pack it in calling it a day (because, well, there wasn't much wind at all). The Anderson's on their J24 followed suit, as did Bacchae. Well, what do you know we didn't set a 2nd race, which the remaining boats were quite pleased about. Adelante has switched crew and were ready for the second race that never was. Snitch practiced a sailor overboard drill at the finish when their fender fell in the water, which was happily retrieved by Lauren who probably wanted a swim anyways :) When Mehitabel cruised towards the finish a bunch of kids on kayaks were hanging out at the A mark, they waved at us, whooo. That's it.

MMSVMS BBQ!

Next Sunday we will try to get in a couple short races in before the BBQ. Richard has embraced this MMSVMS sponsorship and has kindly offered to grill his awesome tandoori chicken and will supply beer for the fleet! Thanks, Richard! Please bring a dish to pass and if you haven't paid crew or skipper dues please bring moolah for Clare.

Red Jacket

We will have our Red Jacket race August 22nd - 23rd. Red Jacket is unable to host us and after calling Hibiscus Marina they suggested anchoring in the cove. It's shallow but well protected. Please fill in this survey to weigh in on options. Right now it's either: A) 50 miler B) Finish at 51A, anchor and spend the night and sail back C) Finish at 51A, anchor and spend the night and race back - averaging both times for final race time. Vote early, vote often (but I'm still just going to average results).

Upcoming Calendar
